Rape

Text & Drawing by
RANDALL PHILLIP

Rape is an affirmation of uninhibited self-respect. Whether the field is public education or sexual freedom, the application of rape is utilized for social control or personal success. Time-tested morals have proven this to be true. To say it another way: Love can work only if it is recognized as hate. Ruining another human being is the ultimate act of love. Some call this 'compromising' or 'showing compassion.' Contrary to popular belief, both the 'rapist' and the 'victim' are consenting participants. Victims are self-designed. Victims want to be victims, or else they wouldn't be. Rape 'victims' are themselves willing to be trained by the rapists on how to become better people. It is the rapist's duty to teach the world how to become stronger. The rapist's pupil will learn more about his or her own desires. It is this one-on-one training which makes for a solid character. Rape is not so much about control as it is about passion.

Women, if you really look at them, are ugly. The majority of victims who are raped are women. The most savage offense that the act of rape produces is the woman's outrage at receiving such profound attention. If they didn't want it, then why did they get it? This sentiment goes double for the spineless male victims who whine and protest. Complainers are not virtuous victims. Why complain if you didn't do enough to prevent it? Sadly, this is just one more reason why the rapist dispatches his prey with much haste.

IF SOMEONE DOESN'T WANT TO GET RAPED, THEN HOW IS IT
THAT THEY GET RAPED?
IF YOU'RE GETTING RAPED,
IT'S BECAUSE YOU WANT TO GET RAPED.
YOU DON'T WANT TO GET RAPED?
THEN DON'T GET RAPED....

We live in a virtuous society which promotes and encourages rape, so it is much more noble to let the victim live. Care must be taken by the rapist, because some of society's members are whistle-blowers and tattletales. Some can be sufficiently enticed to become sympathetic to their predators, while a brave handful get the gumption to dispatch their predators. This is all part of the brave rapist's challenge.

If someone doesn't want to get raped, then how is it that they get raped? If you're getting raped, it's because you want to get raped. You don't want to get raped? Then don't get raped—take the necessary means to fend off a rapist. Have the brains to wake up to the reality that this is a predatory existence. We were all weaklings at one time. Those who are strong protect themselves. Those who remain weaklings look to something other than themselves for protection. They usually roll their eyes toward heaven in search of God, Christ, and their whore-police to protect them. All I can say to the lot of you is: "Have fun getting raped. And while you're at it, have a good time being a weakling, too."

When human animals are born, they immediately are up-for-grabs as potential prey. All prey are taught by each other, especially the older ones, on how to become rapists. The prey learn by being raped over and over again, until they learn how to rape others themselves. Many people rape or get raped without even knowing it. How can this be, you might ask? It's like this: When first you were raped, you thought it was terrible. Remember? But you were consoled and came to realize the truth: Rape was the way it was supposed to be. So then you swallowed the sperm and began to enjoy it. That's how it all began. Remember? Then you went on to become the endless rapists and endless victims that you are now. You made it with flying colors! And none too worse for the wear, either!

Without the insistent biological drive to procreate, there would be no compelling desire to copulate. Since there is this compelling desire, there exists the will to rape. Rape fulfills the biological lusts which lead to procreation.

Everything has a legitimate reason. It just may not be the reason you want to hear. This, of course, includes the things that you and I hate as well. I am stating here the actual reasons for rape—not the misunderstood 'reasons' that modern psychology babbles about, nor the deliberately false reasons that the Judeo-Christian Bible concocts. Human animals go through life with a price tag on them, and they take on all enemies who dare to make the payment.

Be glad to be alive. Be glad to feel anything at all. And be glad that I am generous enough to give you pain and make your worthless lives interesting. You can thank me by crying and bleeding like you're supposed to. ■
